

tooth-Implant Conversion

Last Updated Sunday, 20 August 2006

Converting a Tooth Supported Overdenture to Implants

This patient had an tooth supported overdenture which lasted for several years and gave her excellent service. When I first saw her, the bar was detached from the teeth on the right side and the case was failing. Our goal in treatment was to convert her as soon as possible to an implant supported overdenture thereby preserving the remaining bone.