

Long Distance Implant Dentistry

Last Updated Sunday, 13 April 2008

Comprehensive Reconstruction of Mandibular Jaw with Crowns & Bridge Restorations A Long Distance Treatment Scenario

Every day patients contact me through my web site about their dental implant treatment. Many of them end up traveling (some very long distance) to Boca Raton for their dental treatment. Some of them can stay here for months while the treatment is being completed, but many have to travel for several visits during the process. The challenge for me is to make each visit as efficient as possible for these patients.

The patient pictured here contacted me by e-mail earlier this year (2000) and inquired about having her dental treatment performed in Boca Raton by me. I had her send me records and information about her dental needs and we worked up a tentative treatment plan. She lived in Texas, but her present job assignment often brought her to Florida. We arranged for her to come for a full workup and I presented her with a treatment plan which she accepted. I arranged to do her entire treatment in just four visits and we set up the first of these visits.