for patients who are missing one tooth such as a central incisor

Many People have lost just one tooth... very often due to an accident and this is one of the most challenging situations for your dentist. To replace a single tooth, especially a front tooth, demands great skill and total understanding of all of the concepts that go into cosmetic dentistry. When this is done with dental implants, there is little room for error.

This section features many different facets of the restoration of a single tooth utilizing dental implants. There is great emphasis on the front teeth in this category because of the extreme expertise that is necessary to correctly do this job.
