

Help

Last Updated Tuesday, 28 November 2006

Size

and scope of this web site

Yes the site is huge... Almost 2000 pages now and still growing. Practically every phase of dental treatment involving dental implants is covered as well as other topics in dentistry. The purpose of the site is twofold... First it is designed to help the consumer in making an intelligent decision about dental treatment with implants. Secondly, it is designed to give the dentist starting out in implant dentistry more information about this fascinating technology.

Navigation

elements

The site is designed to utilize Menus for navigation. Menus will be found on the left hand of the page and they are usually context sensitive to reflect the section that you are viewing. Occasionally, you will find links within the text of the page. You might also find menus within the page or at the top of the page to help you navigate certain sections.

Contacting

S. Robert Davidoff

The best way is email

at srobert@dental-implants.com.
other contact information is available at my office site.

How

you should view this site

It does seem a little trite to say, "start at the beginning", but that is where everything is happening. I have tried to list the links in the order that you should follow them so that would be a good way to proceed. Patients and dentists should start with the General Info Menu and then work with either the Patient Menu or the Dentist Menu to get more specific information.

How

to relate materials on this site to your dental treatment

Every clinical situation is different. You should not assume that any particular treatment scenario shown here is exactly right for you. These are merely instances of treatment that you can discuss with your dentist. Ultimately, you and your dentist will decide what treatment parameters are in your best interest.

Answering

specific questions

I get lots of specific questions from people about their dental treatment. I cannot answer them without examining the patient and seeing all of the current dental records. I can give guidelines about general treatment scenarios. {mosloadposition contact}

S. Robert Davidoff, DMD, FACP